Try to stay cool everyone! And try to make it out to see Suzi's son in Fort Worth! Details below:

Suzi's son Brandon Murphy is starring in a play at the Amphibian Theater in Fort Worth. Sounds like a fun summer production. We thought we would get a group of interested Townees to join us for lunch and the play. The information is below.

TOWN Culture Event: Play "The Shark is Broken"

Sunday, August 2 - 2:00 PM

Amphibian Theater, Fort Worth

Tickets: amphibianstage.com

Ticket prices are a pay what you can afford so that everyone can enjoy theater. You can pay either:

$20 - low cost

$30 - discounted

$45 - standard

$60 - pay it forward

There are no assigned seats, but the theater is relatively small so can easily see from anywhere.

Background on the play:

Before Jaws ate the box office alive, three actors nearly ate each other. Trapped on a board with a broken mechanical shark, Robert Shaw, Richard Dreyfuss and Roy Schneider turn a film delay into a testosterone-soaked pressure cooker.

So, if you remember way back then the filming on the boat was only supposed to take a couple of days. However, it turned into a 100+ day event. This is a funny behind the scenes look at what happened behind the scenes written by a guy that was actually there.

We will do lunch near the theater before the play. Once we know who all is coming, we can decide which restaurant later.

If you have friends that you would like to invite that are not TOWN members, please bring them along. I just need to know who is coming so that I can make reservations for those that want to do lunch before the play.
